OH, FOR -WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, BY JOE RANSOME.

Oh, for a home in a cave in the mountain,
Where the cool water eternally drips!
Oh, for a drink from the deep Arctic fountains,
Where the polar bear shivering sips;
Oh, for some spot where the North wind is blowing,
Far, very far from a city or town;
Oh, for a land where it ever is snowing,
Oh, for a drink that would freeze going down!

Oh, for the dark, damp hut of an Esquimo,
Builded where sun is ne'er known to warm,
Oh, for the snow-walled and roofed-over igloo,
Ever kept cool by the breath of the storm;
Oh, for the power to dress at one's pleasure,
Cumbersome garments to throw to one side,
Have nothing to do but sit at our leisure,
In "Mother Hubbard," at least three yards wide.

Oh. for a fan that was broad as a prairie.

High as the Sierra's rock-gnarded crest,

With sticks as the pines in whose branches airy

The eagles delight to fashion their nest;

And, oh, for an arm that was muscled as giant,

To keep it a-going with infinite ease,

And at each bend of the elbow, mighty, but pliant,

To wake from its slumber a vigorous breeze.

Oh, that the power was given to mortals.

When flesh is a burden and blood boils 'round the Soul,

To change to a bird, and, leaving tropical portals,
To wing our way Northward and roost on the pole
Or change to a fish, and with swift, graceful motion, Dive down through the billows with dolphin-like ease, And rest in the grottoes hid deep 'neath the ocean And sleep in a hammock in Antarctic seas.

An ocean of lager as cold as is made,
An ocean of lager as cold as is made,
A river of claret by icy shores bounded,
A foaming Niagara of rich lemonade;
And, oh, for a mouth as the cave of Kentucky,
To suck in the coldness, and it wouldn't be wrong
To wish for a gift, and one would be lucky
If his throat was stretched out till a mile or two long.

Oh, for a canyon filled up with halistones,
With water distilled from the snow-melting lakes,
With a sharp dash of lemon from tropical pale zones,
And given a tossing by earth when it shakes:
Oh, to throw off the flesh that encumbers,
To sit on our bones, if 'twere only the rule;
Oh, to be stuffed with ice frozen cucumbers.
Oh, for anything decidedly cool!

Oh, mid this fanning and melting.

This panting and gasping for breath,
This horrible sweating and sweltering,
One is ready to shake hands with death!
And if e'er consolation is given,
For being called on to pay the stern price,
Tis the knowledge, when spirit is riven,
We'll be immediately packed round with ice!

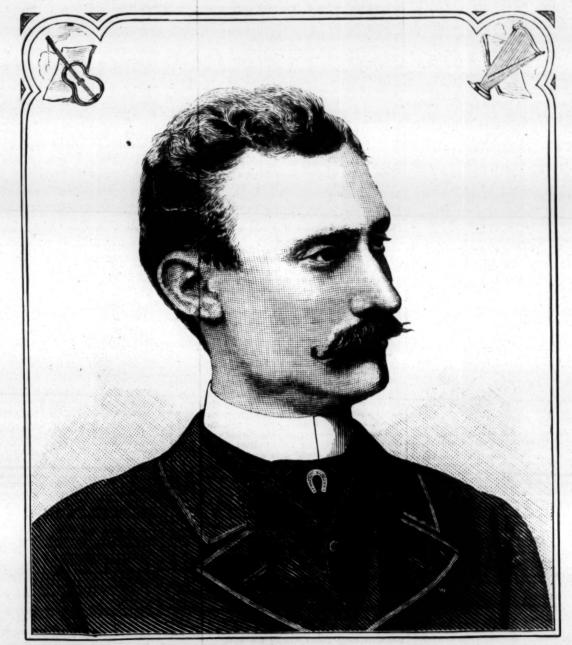

THE H- STREET AFFAIR.

The helps of a certain day—a November day it was, by the way—I was scated in my consulting room making a jotting, as it was my custom to do, of my day's visits. It was not late—evening was only closing in—but I considered my work for another day at an end. As a doctor of medicine my practice was not large. I had not long commenced to practice, which will account for my duties not being of a severely trying character. The neighborhood in which I had established myself, at some little distance from the city, was for the most part given up to a better middle-class population. Afraid to risk my chances of success in a too aristocratic district, and not altogether desiring to throw in my lot with the poorer people, I deemed it politic to adopt a medium course; and, I must say, I had as yet found no reason to regret having done so. I was young and prepared to battle for a position, as I well appreciated I would have to do. Not infrequently the opportunity was given me of undertaking hospital work, such as assisting at post-mortems, etc., and, while I cannot state that this added much to my slender income. I was thereby undoubtedly acquiring the best of knowledge.

On this November afternoon, as I have said, I was occupied in my little room in the rear of the shop. I had not been many minutes in when a cab rattled up to the door and dropped a tall, foreign-looking man, who, entering and showing signs of no little excitement, inquired for me. Surmising that I was about to be introduced to a new "case," I went into the shop.

The tall man was breathing hard, as if he had run a couple of miles for me, instead of driving in a four-wheeler as he had done. I was not preposessed by his appearance. There was something like a distrustful scowl upon his face, which was well displayed, his restless, beady-black eyes seeming to search me through and through. I nodded, and he went on "Ah! well, I want you to see a patient. If—if you'll get into the cab, I'll explain as we drive along."

With some degree of trepidation, for there w wide awake, and this gave to the animal an unusual steepy look.

Bidding me follow him, the stranger proceeded to the stairs, and, pushing open a door, he ushered me into a bed-room. On the bed lay the rigid form, entirely covered, of what I on my first glance decided was a female of thin, spare build.

Laying aside my hat and gloves I approached noislessly, and was about to turn down the bed-clothes to see the face of my patient when the stranger spoke. His voice was low, but it contained such a menace as made me take a step back.

"Dr. Ambrose," he said, speaking slowly and fixing me with a stare which I returned as haughtly as my astonishment permitted, "this is your passing the system of the stare which I returned as haughtly as my astonishment permitted, "this is your passing the stare which I returned as haughtly as my astonishment permitted, "this is your passing the stare which I returned as haughtly as my astonishment permitted, "this is your passing the stare which I returned as haughtly as my astonishment permitted, "this is your passing the stare of the start of the stare of the start of the stare of the start of the stare which I returned as haughtly as my astonishment permitted, "this is your passing the start of the st

The stranger remarked my astonishment, and his eyes gleamed malignantly under his lowered brows as he continued, if possible, even more threateningly than before:

"He is unconscious. Now understand me, doctoo, his face must remain concealed from you, and the bedclothes must not be disturbed.

"But," I expostulated, in wonderment at his reasons for such conduct, "how in the world am I to diagnose the patient's aliment, if not permitted to make even a cursory examination?"

"As best you can under the circumstances. You can use your hands to count the beat of the pulse, and do all that is necessary for you to do in that manner, under the bedclothes; but you must not see his face?"

"And what is your eason for this extravagant proceeding?" I asked him angrily, new fully determined to decline to render medical aid under any such preposterous and impossible conditions. "I do not intend to give any reason," was his biunt reply.

"Then," I said sternly, "it is impossible for me to prescribe for the patient. I must see her to under-stand what is wrong."

I said "her" intentionally, on the spur of the moments, as we were whirled rapidly through the quiet street, and I could not recollect having ever been in it before.

The door was approached by about a dozen steps, who left himself in with a key. The door closed behind us with a heavy bang that struck me as being very inconsiderate with an ill person on the premises, and I could myself in an elegantly furnished, though illighted, hallway.

As we entered a dog approached us. Hasty as was may motion, some defect about one of his eyes was may motion, some defect about one of his eyes was may motion, some defect about one of his eyes was my motion, some defect about one of his eyes was my motion, some defect about one of his eyes lid was only partially open when the other was moment partly wrenching aside the clothes that covered the head. I had time to see a pinched, white, lifeless, face, the muscles fixedly set, a blue tinge surrounding the eyes, which were closed. A thin streak of silky black hair was upon the upper lip. To act and perceive these things was but a second's work, then turning and facing the stranger, whose features were fairly contorted by passion, I ejaculated the three words: "This is murder."

Scarcely had the accusation found ntterance, when a stunning blow on the top of my head, as from a heavy bar, deprived me of my senses, and I sank unconscious to the ground.

from a heavy bar, deprived me of my senses, and I sank unconscious to the ground.

When I came to myself, I was lying on the little couch in my room behind the shop, my assistant doing what he could to restore me. The wound on my head was very painful, but, I was giad to find, was not of a serious character. Naturally, on recovering my senses; I was surprised at finding my-self there, and asked an explanation, for I remembered nothing after the blow.

"The same gentleman brought you here in the cab," I was informed. "He said you had tripped in stepping out of it, and he feared you had received a severe hurt to your head. He was greatly upset, and, after getting you brought in here, said his wife was so ill he couldn't wait."

"Yeafty fellowg" was my comment; but—"His wife did he say?" I queried incredulously. "Yes," replied my assistant; "and he said he would come back later and see how you got on. There's the card he left."

I took it eagerly and read, "Jules R. Condott." It gave no address, and I tossed it aside, for I knew it had been used merely as a bilnd for my unsuspicious assistant.

it had been used merely as a blind for my unsuspi-cious assistant.

I pondered the affair long, but could make noth-ing of it. It was patent to me there was unboubted villainy about; but the more I mused over it, the more clearly did I realize how powerless I was to interfere. However, I resolved it was my bounden duty to report the occurrence to the police authori-ties, and I did so without delay. A quick-witted detective-sergeant by the name of Holland was put on the case, and with him I discussed the matter at considerable length, and in all its aspects.

At the very outset we were nonplussed in that I was unable to point out the house to which I had been conveyed.

"Very well," I agreed glad to have an opportunity of setting the affair, and thorough jut out at the non-success of our second visit to the locality; "that ought to decide to no swy or other."

I had thought of my ability to do what the detective took for granted. Still, I might try, and decided to set out on my tour of discovery.

But before leaving Holland, who did not think there would be any necessity for his accompanying, and the companying the same settled in my own mind. It was holland's opinion that the man, naturally aggravated in conveying me toak to the shop, had made a slip in speaking of his "wife;" no doubt he person really was his former seam, that the grave upon the bed was that of a male. The black hair on the upper lip, the electeric had little doubt had been attached to help out the delusion.

Hours long I walked through every likely street and soon gave up all hope of succeeding in my and the accompanying of the search, when the cleave the supply parading that I had chanced upon the house, but how was I to know it from its fellows: Weak it is to know it from its fellows: Weak it is to know it from its fellows: Weak it is known, and that was quite disheartier of London that I had never till then known, and that was quite disheartier of the supplemental of the supplem

"We'd better see it together," and we set out for the street.

We had little difficulty in ascertaining that the tenement was to ist, and before long we had secured the keys, ostensibly to view the premises. The staircase I recognized, but it was thick with dust. I ted Holland to the room in which I had seen the 'patient," it was empty and covered with layers of dust, as was the case everywhere else. Any little hope which the finding and tracking of the dog had raised, and which the deserted exterior of the building had left me, now disappeared: for it was simply impossible that the house could have been occupied in any way the night before. Careful examination was made to discover traces of recent habitation, but none were forthcoming.

I felt decidedly chagrined at this result, and, though Holland tried to raise my spirits, I fancied he entertained some snapicion of my being in my right mind. Not that he had no cause for so thinking, as I myself was now half inclined to look on my experiences of the previous night as having foundation solely in my own imagination. But the pain behind my ear was too acute to permit of the long harboring of that theory.

I returned alsa ppointed to the shop, Holland gening back to the potice office. I was sorely in need of rest, and slumbered uneasily for a time in an armehair. Fortunately, my professional services were not in demand; had they been so, I question if their exercise would have proved to my patients', or to my own, advantage. In fact, I was unfitted for work. The excitement and fatigue of the past twenty-four hours, coupled with the loss of blood from my scalp wound, were more than my physique could readily put up with.

But I could not long remain mactive. I was in a perpetual fidget. I had made a statement to the authorities which was already regarded with questioning by at least one of their functionaries. My professional reputation—it was not much of a reputation, I ha

Thoughts like these kept returning to me, and, more with the intention of getting away from them than for any other reason, I once more went out.

II.

Absently I shaped my course for the scene of my previous evening's adventure, and, almost before I knew it, found myself opposite the house.

It was now well on toward dark. The street was entirely deserted, save for my solltary self. The edifice displayed all the outward indications of being without occupants; but, as I looked up at the top-windows, I fancied I saw a sudden hash of light. In doubt as to the reliability of my eyesight, I continued to gaze upward. Again there was the flash, as of a candie passed behind a venetian blind. No longer dubious of the fact, I left the spot, in search of Mr. Holiand, pleaseo's / be able to strengthen my position even thus trivially.

The detective pursed up his lips in a puzzled way when I breathlessly told him of the light; then, putting on his greateout, we left the office in company, repairing with as much celerity as we could to it—street. The distance between the police chambers and H—street was no inconsiderable one; but Holiand and I were not long in covering it, which we did in stience.

We took up our posts immediately opposite the tenement, where we waited in the chill Winter air for two whole hours unseen from the other side; but, to my extreme disgust, nothing was visible. The light did not again appear.

Doctor, look here, said Holland bluntly, as we turned away, 'I cannot for the life of me see how any person could possibly live in that house after the examination we made to day. But, to satisfy you, and put the matter at rest, although I myself think it will be fruitless, if you agree, we will come back here to-morrow, get inside the house and remain quietly in it till night. What do you say?

"Very well," I agreed, glad to have an opportunity of setting the affair, and thoroughly pin out at the non-success of our second visit to the locality; 'that ought to decide it one way or other."

"You know," ountin

horiously, as if carrying a heavy weight between them.

Cautiously, and with a pause at every other step, they descended. A lamp, suspended by a cord from the top banister, afforded them but a poor light to guide their movements.

At this juncture Holland silently pulled open the chamber. The parties coming down, whoever they were, must pass our door, which led out on to the landing.

Some minutes elapsed ere two men came in sight, bearing between them a long coffin-shaped box at the appearance of which I could scarce refrain from I had no doubt that it contained the heady! I had seen in the bedroom.

They passed before us and continued down the flight of dusty sleps. When about halfway down and, pulling me over towards him, whispered:

"We must make an attempt at capture now; only! wish I had stationed some men about. However." he spoke grimly, "are you fit for it?"

For reply! pressed his arm.

"Then come on. We must get them both," and he approached the stair-landing on tiptoe, I following.

When we got to the bend of the stair, the man in advance, in whom I at once recognized the person of "Jules R. IV.

When we got to the bend of the stair, the man in advance, in whom I at once recognized the person of "Jules R. Conlott." suddenly looking up, and, seeing us pursuing, dropped the box with a cry of alarm, and precipitately decamped. The other, letting go his end of the wooden casket turned round to ascertain the cause of his companion's sudden retreat, and Holland, shouting, "Surrender to the law," grappled with him, breathlessly bld-ding me follow the confederate. This behest I was on the point of obeying, but stopped, and went instead to the detective's assistance, for he was already thrown to the ground by his opponent, a man of meagre build, but great strength.

The box in falling had come in contact with the thin railing of the staircase, breaking several of the plain iron supports. Wrenching away one of these, the man, snorting like an enraged buil, whirded it round his head, and I naturally fell back, then, leaping over the oblong case, he flew down the few remaining steps and disappeared. Holland's head, dashed against the wall with no little force, was badly cut, and several seconds elapsed before my efforts at restoring him were successful. Then, with as little delay as possible, we followed the pair of culprits, but, it is almost needless to say, we saw no more of them.

Holland then made for the front door, where, blowing his whistle, he had soon several stout policemen at his disposal, who searched every nook and cranny likely to afford concealment, without, however, coming upon either of the men. In the green behind the house, which was also subjected to close scrutiny by the light of the policeman's lamps, for it was now pitch dark, the exclamation of one of Mr. Holland's assistants, who had narrowly escaped failing into it, attracted our attention to a hole, of no great depth, which had been dug in a corner against the party wall dividing the properties. The office of the wooden case, and the dividing the properties. The office of the wooden case, and the intention of the two rufflans we had surprised, were now apparent. Holland whistled softly to himself when the discovery was made.

"By Jove! this is a serious business," he admitted. Then, turning to his men, he continued: "Here Willis, Henderson, and you, Watson, away off round the terraces and keep a sharp lookout for any suspicious characters."

We returned to the house. The horrible nature of the transaction we had disturbed kept me silent. Had the two men completed their night's work without interference, a dastardly act might never have been detected.

Holland addressed me abruptly:

"I've no doubt, doctor," he said, "they've got safe away, but I've been trying to think how they esaid possibly get into the house. I'll take my oath there was no one in it yesterday when we went through it together, and yet to-night they get into it without coming in by the front. It's puzzing, and I want to solve the mystery."

"We heard them first of all in the attics," I responded, and suggested: "Had we not better go up there now?"

we now?"
We proceeded to the top of the huge house, n one of the rooms we found that part of the wall ad been removed, giving an entrance to the adoning tenement.

"That accounts for it," remarked Holland;

"That accounts for it," remarked Holland; quietly. "The house alongside seemed a very quiet one, I fancied. But I thought you were positive of the house, doctor," he added, dryly. "Well, so I was till I saw it couldn't have been tenanted, and even then the dog strengthened my former belief."
"By the way, we have never seen that dog again. It must have belonged to the last occupant of this house."

house."
"I think that must be the explanation, although it must have been in the other house I saw it."
"Well, well. We ve explained everything now and no mistake," said Holland, grimly; and, turning to the policeman who had entered the room at our heels: "You go down to the house on the right, and get in—if you can. I expect you won't manage it." The policeman disappeared, obedient to the order of his superior and we cross that hole into the adjoining building. The garret apariment we obtained adminsion to in this fashion had, to all appearances, been used for the storage of lumber, and was buil of odds and ends of furniture. The rattling of the door-bell away down below was distinctly audible in the stillness of the night where we stood. Hollands assistant soon came back to report, as we expected would be the case, that his prolonged ringing of the bell had brought no response, no one seeming to be in the place.

Then we had better expiore, "decided Holland, and we commenced to ransack the house, which was in all details, as regards accommodation, the counterpart of that alongside in which Holland and lide been so long confined. There was every sign of its having been in the possession of people of weath. The forniture, if not all of recent date, was substantial, and costly pictures hung upon the walts.

One bedroom I had no besitation in recognizing as that in which I had been so strangely introduced to my patient. The furnishings of the apariment were tossed about in the greatest confusion—the blankels and sheets dragged from the bed and lying in bindless on the floor; the carpet ruffled, and a heap of charred papers within the grate.

The disorder was more noticeable in this chamber than in any other in the house, and, as I gazed round on the disarrangement, I decided in my own minot that if crime there was and I had little doubt of it then, it had been committed here.

Leaving everything undisturbed, and stationing two policemen in charge, we retraced our steps to the box, which was opened by my order. As I had thought, it contained the body of a woman, and, oddly enough, I could perceive no odor, on removing the lid, such as would indicate decomposition: from which I was toreed to conclude that death had occurred not long before. This puzzled me not a little, as, I debated, had the woman been dead when. I saw her on the bed, decomposition must of necessity have been by now well advanced. Had the woman, then, been dead when I was Early on the forenoon of the following day I set out for the hospital. It would be with more than ordinary interest that I would assist in the examination of the body we had captured. I had no difficulty in being put on the work; indeed, my friend Allgreave, the hospital doctor, invited my conversation.

"Did you remark the absence of smell?" was his rejoinder.

"I did. To-day, and also last night, and it surprised me very much; but." I added, "I never doubted that she was not dead."

"Did you note the muscular rigidity of the limbs?" he west on; "they refuse to yield, even to harsh treatment!"

"Yes." I agreed. "When I first entered the sick chamber, as I think I told you, I was struck with the severe outline of the patient on the bed, although she was entirely covered then."

"I don't think she's dead," he answered quietly, Again he subjected the form to searching observation, making use of those innumerable and simple tests that seem to come with experience, but which, for the most part, were then unknown to me. I was like a cipher beside Allgreave, his knowledge was so extensive.

when, for the most party were the duration to knowledge was so extensive.

"We'll try the battery," be decided after a short pause of hesitation, an unusual thing with him: and he produced a diminutive case inclosing a small electrical apparatus for medical use.

The body was gently eased on the table to a sitting posture, although the bending of the muscles was no easy task, and the current sent into the small of the back, at the lumbar vertabre. The immediate consequence of the initial shock was that the body gave a sharp jerk forwards.

"Bless me!" murmured Allgreave under his breath, in consternation. I take it that his own theory was supported by this incident. He had the narrow wrist in his hand. "She isn't dead! The pulse is moving!"

the narrow wrist in his hand. "She isn't dead! The pulse is moving."

He took a couple of fine needles, and, baring the woman's feet ran them under the toenails into the quibk, watching grimly for the result—a movement, hasty and of not long duration, of one of the arms. He repeated the operation, and a quiver ran through the limb he had selected. With the other foot he did the same thing, when a sharp twitch was given to the leg, and a spasm crossed the waxlike face.

Satisfied with these displays of sensation, he pro-ceeded to try the result of more exquisite pain, with the view of recovering the presently subdued muscular power.

I stood in silence watching him, I could be of

I stood in silence watching him. I could be of little assistance in such an extreme case as this, and I knew he would work better if I did not interrupt. But to stand by and watch in silence was a trial to me, in my then frame of mine, almost more than I could bear.

He turned his attention next to the nerves of the cyc, sending a strong light into that organ. The result seemed to determine his opinion.

"Catalepsis" he briefly explained, without looking up; and what had been a sort of mystery to my thoughts—I half guessed, from the characteristics of the peculiar case, that it was something of the kind now so concisely indicated by Allgreave—was made clear. I had had no experience of this dreadful nervous disorder, in which volition and all muscuiar action are abruptly terminated, leaving the subject torpidly in the posture he occupied at the moment of attack; and I was, therefore, of little service to nay more learned confrere, who had already determined upon his course of treatment.

Providing himself with a small-sized and finely-frere, who had already determined upon his course of treatment.

Providing himself with a small-sized and finely-edged blade, he entirely severed the upper portion of one of the nails, cutting the flesh on both sides. The whole body moved spasmo-iteally, so keen was the torture inflicted, and an arm slipped over the side of the table, waving to and fro for a few seconds with a pendulous motion, showing that a cessation of restraint upon the muscles had already to some extent supervened. Aligreave's attempts at recuperation were evidently to be crowned with success, and he apparently thought so himself.

At this stage he requested me to bring a couple of nurses, which I hastened away to do.

When I returned with the two hospital attendants it was to find that Aligreave had so far succeed in his task of bringing the woman out of her trance-state that her eyes were staring wildly around, though they seemed not to convey any impression to the brain.

In this morbid condition she was carefully carried into the hospital proper, for it was thought that if she came to her senses in such a place as the dissecting-room, the nature of her surroundings might go far to procure a relapse.

There is little more to tell. The case was one of the dissecting-room, the nature of her surroundings might go far to procure a relapse.

There is little more to tell. The case was one of nusual interest to the faculty, not alone on account of the length of time during which the suppression of sensation and voition had endured, but because of the singular circumstances by which it had been attended throughout. The atlack, it was generally agreed, must have been made by the disease when the woman was asleep, the position in which her body was found confirming this hypothesis. It occurred to me, in reviewing the incidents leading up to this achievement of my friend Allgreave (for the medical journals of the time regarded his successful treatment of the case in this light), that I had been guilty of a grievous oversight in taking it for granted that life was extinet when it hastily examined the body on the stair, and when I distinctly recollect remarking the total absence of odor peculiar to bodies which stair, and when I distinctly recollect remarking the total absence of odor peculiar to bodies which have departed this life. I spoke of this to All-greave, and he comforted me by saying he would probably have done the same thing in my place, and adding further that the attendant circumstances, so upsetting in themselves, entirely exonerated me from fault.

There was little doubt—and the view was corroborated by the woman berself on her recovery, which, I am glad to say, was soon effected—that the man who called at my shop had considered himself the cause of his wife s death—for wife of his she proved to be—and, fearing discovery, had decided to entomb what he little thought was a living body. The woman was not by any means a robust person.

to no what he little thought was a living body. The woman was not by any means a robust persou, but rather one of nervous and hy sterical tendencies.

I never heard anything more of her husband. All that I can say is that the house in H— street was vacated some little time after the woman's discharge from the hospital as cured. Whether the man, whose name was proved not to be 'Jules R. Condont,' ever returned, I cannot with certainty tell; but, as the case was much commen ed upon by the newspapers, and he must have been made cognizant of his error of judgment in deeming his wife dead when she was only prostrated from a nervous affection, it is my own impression that he did. Certainly, the law could not hinder atm from doing so, as my detective friend Holland had reluctantly to admit.

MILWAUKEE.—Thatcher, Primrose & West's Min streis commenced their sixth annual season at the New Academy July 30, 31. The first part excessed expectations. It consists of a transformation-scene (a la "Nozo"). The curtain rises on a southern scene, and after a few strains of "Away Down on the Swanee River," the drops (there are fifteen in all) raise, disclosing in their turn the comedians, end men, vocalists and musicians. All except the end men appear sans cork, and they are all attired in the costumes prevalent during the reign of King Louis XI. End songs are supplied by Fred Matthews (who also does his grotesque dance), Lew Hawkins, Geo. Thatcher and Geo. Primrose. The selections of ballads consist of "The Trumpets Call," by John Davis; "The Song that Reached My Heart." by Julian Jordan; "The Rose of Kentucky," by Wm. McIntyre; "Sitting in the Twilight." by Fred Oakland, and "Warbling Birds," by Ed. Guguere. The olio is exceptionally strong and embraces Hi Tom Ward and Ed. Marks in a silence-and-fin act, Geo. GEORGIA. CEORGIA.

AUGUSTA.—There has been some talk of rebuilding our theatre ever since the night it was destroyed by fire, but nothing that I am willing to pin any faith to. Now the stock has all been subscribed, and a site for the building advertised for. Several locations have been offered, and three are under advisement, one of which will be finally selected. Anyone of the three will answer the purpose splendidly. In the meantine, the architect has the pians well under way, and I am assured that work will soon be inaugurated and pushed speedily forward. Good men form the directory of this enterprise, and they propose to build a first-class house, a ground-floor theatre, cosy, and yet with pienty of room, a large stage, elegantly appointed and modern in conveniences. In short, if they build as they tell me they intend to, I will simply say that traveling companies will find much to coo m n -1 and little to find fault with when we shall announce to them to "come ahead, we are prepared."

THE features of a favorite and experienced acto appear above. James M. Hardie was born in Edirgh, Scotland, we believe about 1848. In 1867 he went on the stage. That event occurred in San Francisco, where he quickly gave promise of the good work that has since often been credited to him. He made his way Eastward in 1872, and since that year his has been an admired figure on all the circuits hereabouts. He was for a time in the stock of the Salt Lake Theatre, Salt Lake City. For the past two seasons he has starred with Sarr Von Leer in "A Brave Woman."

WE give on our first page a lifelike portrait of

who is the basso-profundo of Mapleson's Italian-opera Co. He is about twenty-five years of age, and hails from Philadelphia, Pa., where he re ceived a very thorough and liberal musical education. Evidencing the possession of a powerful and melodious voice, he gained at an early age a high reputation in the Quaker City, appearing to much advantage in concerts, etc., prior to making his professional debut, March 26, 1883, at the Lycenm Theatre, in F. T. S. Darley's musical adaptation, 'Fortunio and His Seven Gifted Servants." For several succeeding seasons Mr. Wetter played pro fessionally i : light opera, concerts, etc., filling en gagements in Philadelphia, Chicago and San Fran cisco. While in the last-named city his singing attracted the attention of Patti, and it was chiefly her flattering recommendation that led to Mr Mapleson offering him an engagement to appear in Italian opera. Signing a five-year contract at a liberal salary with Mr. Mapleson, and adopting the name of Sig. Vetta, he made his debut in Italian opera at a matinee Nov. 21, 1885, at the Academy Music, this city, taking the role of Raimondo is "Lucia di Lammermoor," and scoring a prompt and decisive success. Sig. Vetta has since continued a valued member of Mapleson's Co., taking part in its tour through the United States from this city to San Francisco, and also through Great Britain during the season of 1886-7. Sig. Vetta's greatest and most artistic success has been achieved as Mephistofeles in Gounod's "Faust," a role he sustained six times during an engagement recently concluded at the Covent-garden Theatre, London Eng., his singing and acting alike eliciting lively demonstrations of approval from the audiences. Sig. Vetta, who is gifted by nature with a fine voice which has been carefully cultivated, and has a tall and well-proportioned figure, has always enjoyed a marked degree of popularity among his professional associates, and is modest and unasuming in deportment. Young, intelligent and a dilligent student, he promises to attain in the future an even more enviable share of success in his SENOR G. E. GONZALES has returned to the City of Mexico, after a three years' tour with the Mexican Typical Orchestra. In that period he perigrinated through the United States, Canada, Cuba, South America and Mexico. "I have the honor and satisfaction," he writes, "of recording that your country is far ahead of all others for theatrical prosperity. Its people are livelier in a business way; its accommodations for travelers are better; its system of management—local and circuit—is unsurpassed. After the United States in these respects comes my own country. Every Mexican city is daily becoming more easily accessystem of percentages, etc., and now furnish the house, printing, license, etc., in agreeable contrast to their former custom of furnishing nothing; and the discrimination of our people in patronizing amusements is improving greatly, with a growing tendency in favor of both grand and comic opera. onzales expresses his intention to revisit us, and will extend his next tour to Europe; but he will not include Cuba in his travels, for he lost $5,000 there in ten weeks.

Grand Duke Opera-house.—The work of demolition now going on at the corner of Baxter and Worth streets, will carry with it the famous Grand Duke Opera-house. The place was opened about 1873, with Henry Campora, proprietor; Peter Conners, manager; E. A. Austin, dramatic writer, and Davis Conroy, scenic-artist, and was situated in the basement. The entrance was down a flight of steps and through a dark passage, where, after paying five cents for an admission ticket or eight cents for a reserved seat, the sightseer found himself in the smallest auditorium probably ever in existence, it being only twenty by thirty feet, with a ceiling barely eight feet high, and lighted by lantern and candles placed about the room. The drop-curtain was of Turkish red calico, with chalk drawings, and rolled up like a window-shade. The scenery was done with charcoal upon common white muslin, and the programme was written on the wall with chalk. The audiences, as well as the performers, were mostly composed of newsboys and bootblacks. The Grand Duke was considered one of the sights of the city however, and no one could thoroughly the town" without taking it in. Some of the performers have since made fame for themselves on more pretentious boards. Among them we may mention Frank Bush, the Gorman Bros., Conroy and Daly, Quilter and Goldrich, John Melia, Dick Burke and Dan Delfo. No females were allowed on the stage. The "boys" soon decided whether a man was a performer or not, and if he proved a "stick" he was quickly requested to shuffle off, in no very gentle terms. carriages of the upper-ten would stop before the Grand Duke's doors, and people in high life were trequently seen among the audience. The building which will occupy the site of the Grand Duke will be a large tenement, with a clothing store on the ground floor. There is probably only one of the old Grand Duke style of places now left—the Grand Duchess, where the admission was but two cents, and which will probably soon follow the Grand Duke to make way for more pretentious buildings.

VARIETY AND MINSTREL.

BILLY ROBINSON, the minstrel, states that the use of his name by another "Billy Robinson," in an advertisement in last week's CLIPPER, was entirely unauthorized by him. He is a resident of Brooklyn, and is negotiating for a dramatic engagement for the coming season. The other Robinson claims to be a New Yorker, and seeks a backer for a minstrel show. The original Billy Robinson seems to think that his good name is being used for unprofessional purposes.

The managers of the Paris Opera-house have great confidence in Gaston Salvayre's new opera-entitled 'La Dame de Montsoreau," and founded upon the elder Dumas' well-known novel and very successful play. The libretto is the work of Auguste Maquet, one of Dumas' old time colaborers. The eight sets of scenery preparing for the production of the opera will bring before the spectator eight faithful pictures of ancient Paris. As "La Dame" is not to be brought out until November, the cast, save in respect of the principal male paris, which have been assigned to the Brothers de Reszke, has not yet been finally agreed upon. Some hopes of a young Swedish soprano's times for the leading-role are entertained, but the new comer is still untried, and Mm. Ritt and Gailhard are too practical to take chances in so risky a venture as the introduction of a brand-new work.

CLARKSVILLE.—Workmen have begun to tear away the stage in Elder's Opera-house, preparatory to the remodeling, or, more properly, the complete reconstruction, of the interior of that building. Mr. Elder has been contemplating this improvement for some time, and has consulted the best architects in the country. It is his intention to give the building every convenience and appointment of a first-class theatre, due regard being paid to ornamentation, taste and the beauty of the structure. J. B. McElfatrick is the architect. The new house will have dress-circle, parquet and gallery, five dressing-rooms and four privale-boxes. The seating capacity of the entire auditorium will be eight hundred and sixteen—swe hundred and thirty-six in the parquet and dress-circle, and two hundred and eighty in the gallery. The stage is to be brought eight feet farther forward than at present, and its open dimensions will be 28x38ft. The seats will be the latest improved opera-chairs, and the gas will be lighted by electricity. The improvements are to embrace a full assortment of new scenery. The ceilings and wails are to be frescoed, and the building will be heated by a steam-furnace. Important changes are to be made in the entrance. A large platform will be constructed several feet below the present entrance. The box-office will lead into the main hall. The gallery stairs will go up from the right of this platform. New York City. REVIEW OF THE WERK .- "A Woman's Lie," a ive-act comedy-drama, by Helen Mowat (Mrs. Hal Clarendon), was tried at DOCKSTADER'S, Tuesday night, July 26, before a good-sized house, largely of professional make-up. There were two or three curtain-calls, and to one or them Mrs. Clar-endon responded. This was the cast: Jack Earle, alias Thorndyke, Hal Clarendon Lord Carlos, Ralph Dorman; Dr. Harold Leighton, W. H. stuart; Norman Tenyke, C. F. Montaine; Unc. Vandel, Thomas Chapman; Dr. Greyson, Charles Foster; Rufus, H. D. Blakemore; Joe, James Prentiss; Grace Earle, Florence Stover; Ethel, Eva McManus; Blanche Van Tyne, Georgie Levard; Poppy Featherstone, Lizzie Elmore; Mme. Tenyke, May Roberts: Martha Washington, Mrs. Frank Tannehill ; Norma Tenyke (as a child), Linda Bainbridge; Baby Ethel, Little Dot; Blanche Van Tyne (as a child), Little Mowat. In this assignment of characters those seen to conspicuous advantage were Messrs. Clarendon, Stuart and Mon-taine, Mrs. Tannehill and Miss Stover. The play's merits are found in its brisk comedy lines and its effective climaxes; its faults are the natural ones of an inexperienced dramatist.

DANIEL FROHMAN and Edward H. Sothern have discovered another manuscript play of the late E; A. Sothern, entitled "The Founder of the Family." It is by Maddison Morton, and is evidently one of the elder Sothern's expensive purchases. The leading character has been modeled upon Dundreary, and shows the awkward scrapes agood-natured and interesting young man can get into when he is troubled with severe absence of mind. The play is in three acts, and the leading character is elaborately worked out with every indication in his lines and in his business that he will provoke laughter. A number of changes and improvements will be made in the play, as was the case with "The Highest Bidder," and it will be reserved for Mr. Sothern's appearance at the Lyceum next May. Mr. Sothern will appear in "The Great Pink Pearl" at the Lyceum next September before he starts on his starring tour.

THE managers of "The Fall of Babylon" at St. George, S. L, inform us that the spectacle will continue far into October. The most profitable days have yet to come, they think, though the big pageant has already been visited by seven hundred thousand persons. The immense number of people engaged in the spectacle are now bandled with consummate smoothness, and the show is seldom marred by hitches.

THE REMAINS OF JACK SEYMOUR, ex-sprinter, and the partner of Sam Mathews in the management of the California Athletic Club, were found floating in the Bay of San Francisco on July 17. The body had been in the water so long that the features were altogether unrecognizable, being in large part caten away by fish, and the only way in which the remains were identified was by a bunch of keyes found on the person of deceased, and by the clothing he wore. Seymour disappeared suddenly on July 1, leaving letters in which he stated that he was short in his accounts, and could not face his creditors. There seems to be no doubt that he committed suicide in order to rid himself of his troubles. His funeral was largely attended by the sporting fraternity.

J., when the ground there was the Central cricket resort of Philadelphia in the days of 1538, 59, and 60° She was a genial old soul, a motherly English woman of the olden time, who loved to see "the byes"—as she called Barclay, Vernon, the Wisters, the Newhalls, Collis, Davis and the other cricketers of the Quaker City of thirty years ago. She was the widow of William Bradshaw, at one time professional of the Philadelphia Club. On July 28 the old lady died in Camden, N. J., at the advanced age of 82. There was a large attendance of veteran cricketers at her funeral, Aug. I.

The proposition to send a picked team of resident professionals next Winter to Anstralia from the United States is one that could not but result disastrously to the visitors, financially, especially as two English teams will then be there. The Australian eleven who have visited England the past five years have been strong enough to defeat the crack county elevens of England time and again. An American eleven at home here have yet to defeat an English visiting eleven in a series of games, though comparatively weak teams have come over here. It would be worse than the Canadian trip to England this year.

On July 30 a one day's game took place at Livingston, Staten Island, between the Staten Island and the Riverside Clubs. The Riversides went to the wickets first and scored 85 runs, J. Lindsay and Grierson were then partners, and the fun commenced. Lindsay pulled the runs up rapidly, and when the partnership desoived the score stood at 73. Walker, the last man in with Grierson, ruised the score to 117, at which down the firm of the ten whe come of the score of the copen of the copen of the copen of the copen o

Mr. Slosson, accompanied by the partner of Mr. St. Martin, the bilitard manufacturer, came to my well-known establishment (consequently he could not have hunted me up), and in the presence of several friends and customers of mine it was decided that two matches between Mr. Slosson and myself would take place in Paris—the first in October, the second in November next. ROWING ON SPIRIT LAKE.

The first day's races of the Iowa State Amateur Rowing Association were held July 26 at Spirit Lake. The weather was beautiful and the slight wind ruffled the course, but did not interfere with the rowing. The first race was the junior double the rowing. The first race was the junior double sculls, and was won by the Council Bluffs crew, composed of Livingston and Sadler, the Dolphins of McGregor second, Cedar Rapids third, and Des Moines distanced. In the junior single sculls Kilby of Ottumwa won easily, beating J. A. Walter of McGregor, second, and Green of Cedar Rapids, third. Kilby had a very easy race, as both his competitors were severely punished in the previous double. In the junior four-oared shell race the Davenport crew won easily, only one other crew the Cedar Rapids. were severely punished in the previous double. In the junior four-oared shell race the Davenport crew won easily, only one other crew, the Cedar Rapids, being entered. The senior races took place on the 27th. The assemblage was much larger than on the previous day and the weather beautiful, with the exception of a wind across the course. The first race was the four oared, between the winning junior crew of the Davenports and the senior Cedar Rapids. Davenport took the lead, but dropped back before the turn and came in two lengths behind. There ware three entries for the senior double-scull race, the Davenports, composed of Donohue and Flemming; the Dolphins of McGregor, Larson and Turner, and the Council Bluffs, Sadier and Livingston. The race was virtually between the Dolphins and the Davenports, and was for blood, the Davenports having defeated the McGregor double, Larson and Geske, on July 4, at Moline; but in this race Turner had taken Geske's place as stroke, and they turned the tables upon the Davenports. It was a grand race, the losing crew having nothing to be ashamed of by the defeat. The senior single scull followed, with Kilby of Ottumwa and Geske and Turner of the Dolphins. Turner had rowed in the double. by the defeat. The senior single sculi followed, with Kilby of Ottumwa and Geske and Turner of the Dolphins. Turner had rowed in the double, and simply started to save his entrance, he being a very tired man. The race, however, was good, Turner coming in three boat lengths behind Kilby. The course was short, and it was a farce to have any time announced. ---

EIGHTEEN YACHTS belonging to the Great Head Yacht Club on July 27 competed in the race for the second leg in the championship cup series. Amateur Oarsmen on Chautauqua Lake
—A Series of Racing Surprises.

The annual regatta of the National Association of Amaleur Oa'smen of America came off on Chautauqua Lake, at Long Point, N. Y., Tuesday and Wednesday, July 26, 27. The weather on both and Wednesday, July 26, 27. The weather on both days was fine, and the water excellent, except in the early portion of the afternoon on the opening day and during the last race on the 27th, when it was rather rough. The attendance on the 26th aggregated about one thousand persons, which was increased to three thousand on the second day. In point of interest the regatta did not compare favorably with others held in former years, mainly for the reason that a number of prominent clubs favorably with others need in former years, mainly for the reason that a number of prominent clubs that formerly figured at the annual meeting of the Association for some reason held aloot, and the entry list consequently lacked the presence of many well-known oarsmen. Nevertheless the sport was fine, and the racing was thoroughly entryed. The course was a mile and a half straight. joyed. The course was a mile and a half, straight-away, starting off Bemus Point and finishing at the extremity of Long Point. Return:

Sensor single scalls—Pirst heat: J. P. Corbett, Farragut Boat Club, Chicago, first, in 10m. 1½a; E. H. O'Nell, Crescent Boat Club, Boston, second, by six lengths; C. G. Psotta, Cornell University, Ithaca, third, four lengths away. Second heat: W. F. Conley, Shawmut Rowing Club, Boston, first, in 9m. 69½s.; E. Mulcahy, Mutual Rowing Club, Albany, N. Snyder, Mutual Boat Club, Albany, second, by three lengths; R. Condon, Bayside Rowing Club, Toronto, third, two lengths away. Final heat: Corbett first, in 9m. 50½a; Ryan second, by a length and a half; Conley third. Conley was the favorite among the knowing ones, and at the signal he went off with the lead, and at the end of a quarter-mile he had clear water between his shell and that of Corbett, who was still further in advance of Ryan. Corbett fild not let Conley get any further away, but to the furprise of the spectators gradually drew upon the leader, whom he passed before reaching the half distance. The Bostonian spurted and got upon even terms again, and a desperate race ensued, each alternating in the lead, but not by more than a few inches, until the last quarter-mile was reached, when Conley dropped back beaten, having been fairly outrowed.

Junior ringle sculls—First heat: G. A. Strickland, Don Amateur Rowing Club, Toronto, first, in 10m. 53½a; G. W. Gurnett, Watkins Boat Club, Watkins, N. Y., second, by two lengths. Second heat: D. A DOZEN small boats started in the first championship race of the season, under the auspices of the Quincy (Mass.) Yacht Club, on July 28. Fatal Accident to a Yachting Party on the Delaware. The cabin-yacht Minerva, owned by the Minerva Yacht Club of Philadelphia, was capsized in the Delaware River, off Boulston street, Camden, on the afternoon of July 30, and sank. Thomas Kennedy, a member of the club, and William White, the colored steward, were drowned. Those on board were Deputy Coroner Thomas J. Lincoin English, William W. Clark, Clayton M. Hunsicker, Nicholas Locket, James Wetherill, and R. P. Thompson, the sailing-master. The following men composed the crew: Thomas Miller, Frederick Richards, Anorew Richards and William White, the steward. The party intended to sail to New York. When below South street the sky clouded and the rain fell in torrents. Capt. Thompson at once ordered sail taken in, and the crew sprang to obey his commands. The peak halyards had swollen with the rain and jammed in the block. At this time a sudden squall struck the boat, and she careened to her starboard side. Before she could be righted she filled, and in a few moments sank. Most of the party were in the cabin, having gone there to escape the rain. Most of the party were in the cabin, having gone there to escape the rain. They scrambled on deck as soon as the boat shipped water, and soon all hands were struggling for their lives in the river. The storm resembled a whirtwind more than a squail, and the water was very rough. The tugs Archambault and Minnie, which had witnessed the upsetting of the yacht, went to the assistance of the men in the water. A line was thrown to Kennedy from the Archambault which fell short, and before anyone from the tug could render any assistance he sank. Ropes were thrown to the men, and they were pulled on board the tug. A line was thrown to White, who appeared to have been paralyzed with fear. He let go his hold on the rope, and, after a few frantic struggles in the water, sank out of sight. out of sight.

QUITE A FUSS is being made over the matter of securing the services of the Allentown Club players Pitcher Beaton and Catcher Kinslow. They are claimed by Cincinnati of the American Association and Detroit of the National League, and they have signed contracts with both. Before Manager Schmelz of the Cincinnati Club signed the players he took the precaution to first wire President Young of the League to know whether they were open to engagement, and was informed that they were. Before he secured the contracts, however, he was shown a telegram from the manager of the Detroit Club saying an agent was on his way to negotiate with them. Schmelz says he will blacklist the men if they do not play with his club. It is said that the Detroits will assert that as no official notice was served on the secretary of the Arbitration Committee of the disbandment of the Pennsylvania State League, of which Allentown was a member, these men were still subject to the contracts of that club. President Stearns of the Detroit Club rests his claim to Beaton's service on the ground that on July 21 he opened negotiations with the Allentown Club for the young pitcher. Stearns offered $1,500 dent Stearns of the Detroit Club resis his claim to Beaton's service on the ground that on July 21 he opened negotiations with the Allentown Club for the young pitcher. Stearns offered $1,500 for his release, and agreed to pay him the limit for the remainder of the season. These terms were accepted, but it was understood that the deal would be off, should the Allentown Club be admitted to the International League. On July 27 Manager Schmelz called upon Beaton and Kinslow, and, after a full explanation of Stearns' visit and offer, signed them to play with the Cincinnati Club for the remainder of the season, claiming that Stearns' verbal agreement was not binding. Beaton and Kinslow telegraphed to President Young for advice and he told Beaton that his acceptance of the terms proposed by Stearns were as binding as a written contract, and therefore he should report to the Detroits for duty. Young in the meantime had promulgated his contract with the Detroits. Manager Schmelz will not let Beaton get away from him without a further struggle.

The pitching records of the Northwestern League to July 23 show Smith, of Milwaukee, credited with 17 victories out of 22 games; Viau, of St. Paul, with 16 out of 23; Krosh, of Oshkosh, with 15 out of 24; Hutchinson, of Des Moines—the old Yale pitcher—with 11 out of 16; Wells, of the same club, with 13 out of 19, and Anderson, of Milwaukee, with 12 out of 19, and Anderson, of Milwaukee, with 12 out of 18. Twelve others have won more games than they had won.

The action of a minority of the International League officials in releasing Umpire Pearce was rather hasty from all accounts. Certainly the Binshampton Club people do not uphold it, and that was the club which suffered from his alleged erroneous decision. The genial veteran is an applicant for a position in the American Association or National League.

In a game recently a base-runner interfered with a batted ball, and Curry said it was not intentional. Whether intentional or accidental the runner is out under such circumstances.

Ten innings were necessary to decide the contest July 26 in Washington, D. C., a lucky streak of batting at the finish then helping the Philadelphias to an unexpected victory. The score stood tied from the fifth inning to the tenth. The home-team then made two runs, and Hines allowed himself to be put out and end the inning, as the visitors were delaying the game into the dark. After Bastian had been given his base on balls, Gunning got in a two-baser, Andrews a three-bagger, and Ferguson a single, and the winning run was scored with only one man out. Clements took IrWin's place and his short-stopping was the fielding feature.

Detroit vs. Chicago.

The eleventh game was played July 26 in Detroit, Mich., the Chicagos then sooring their seventh victory of the series. Conway was put in to pitch for the first time this season, but was knocked out of the box in the fifth inning and Twitcheli was substituted. A home-run hit by Conway over the left-field fence saved the Detroits from being shut out. Clarkson, who pitched very effectively, also made a home-run.

On July 27 the Detroits turned the tables on the Chicagos and won easily, by bunching eight safe hits in the first two innings. Hanlon made a home-run with three men on the bases, and White and Rowe got in two-baggers, and aided by three bases on balls, no fewer than ten runs were then scored by the home-team. The long lead thus gained was too much for the Chicagos to over-come.

Detroit vs. New York.

An exciting contest took place July 28, in Detroit, Mich., the New Yorks then scoring their sixth victory over the home-team. Gruber, iate of the Hartford Club, made his first appearance with the Detroit team, and was wild in his delivery, giving eight men bases on balls, two of whom scored truns. The home-team took the lead in the first inning, when they bunched four hits, three of which were palpable scratches, and scored three runs. Keefe kept the Detroits down to six safe hits in the last eight innings, as single by Brouthers and a three-bagger by Rowe, earning their fourth and last run. Connor, who made a home-run in the first inning, also scored in the third and seventh, after being given his base on balls. The New Yorks tied the score for the second time in the seventh inning.

Pittsburg vs. Philadelphia.
The left-handed pitchers—Casey and Morris—were opposed to each other July 28 in Pittsburg.
Pa., the former proving more effective at critical points. Three times, with men on the bases and two men out, Casey let Carroll go to first on called balls and contented himself with easily retiring left-handed Beecher. Morris was batted freely in the second inning, two-baggers by Ferguson and McGuire, singles by McLaughlin and Buffinton, and a muff by Beecher then yielding four runs and the victory to the visitors. The home-team bunched four safe hits in two inning and earned their two runs. Sullivan failed to give satisfaction as umpire, and the spectators hooted so hard that he twice stopped the game until they subsided.

Fields was the only one of the home-team who seemed able to bat Buffinton, and he made four of their nine scattering safe hits. A three-bagger by Fogarty and an out in the fourth inning earned a run for the visitors, and errors by Kuchne and Fields in the eighth enabled them to the the score. It remained so until the last half of the fourteenth inning, when, with one man out, a two-bagger by Wood and a single by Andrews gave the winning run to the visitors. The fielding feature was Kuchne's short-stopping.

Chicago vs. Boaton.

The eleventh game was played July 28 in Chicago, Ill., the home-team then securing their sixth victory of the series. The champions pounded Conway hard and often, Van Haltren and Clarkson being credited with home-runs, and Ryan with two three-baggers. Plint was "indisposed," and there had to be a pretense of a broken finger, so that Daly could take his place. Kelly protested against the substitution, but it was allowed by Umpire Powers.

Athletie vs. Cincinnati.

A close and exciting contest took piace July 26 in Philadelphia. Pa. the Athleties then defeating the Cincinnatis for the eight time. Mann, who made his first appearance with the home-team, was credited with a difficult running catch. Mullane was batted hard and often, Bauer leading with four successive safe hits, including two two-baggers. Weyhing kept the visitors from scoring more than seven scattering safe hits. Baltimore vs. Cleveland.

In Baltimore, Md., July 26, Kliroy performed the remarkable feat of keeping the opposing club down to one run and eight safe hits in two successive games, with no interval of rest between. Davis drove the ball over right-field fence for a homerun, and Trott made a three-bagger in the first game, which was interrupted for twenty minutes by rain and was confined to seven innings.

The game July 29 was played before the smallest crowd of the week, about three hundred people only being in the grand stand. McCleilan reappeared at second base, but Peoples had to play at short-stop in place of Smith. The Brooklyns had a long lead at the end of the third linning, but they failed to score afterwards, while Cincinnati made a good up-hill fight of it, and by a dash at the bat in the eighth inning, which gave them three runs, came in victors. Reilly then made a home-run. Keenan and Clark caught eleverly.

Brooklyn vs. St. Louis.

It was very annoying to the six thousand people present July 26, at Washington Park, Brooklyn, to see the home-team deprived of the chance of scoring a victory by the rain which fell in the seventh inning. The rain and the delay caused by Comiskey's refusal to allow either of Brooklyn's substitute umpires to act, prevented the game from being begun until 4.20 p. M., and led to play being suspended in the first part of the seventh inning, after the sixth had ended with the score of 1 to 0 in favor of St. Louis. The Browns made the only and winning run off two errors by Pinkney, and had made only one safe hit off Tools. In the seventh inning the home-team punished Caruthers' pitching for two earned runs off two singles and a two-bagger, and that was the position with two men out and a player on second, when Umpire Barnie suspendad play on account of a light rain. Within ten minutes afterwards it rained heavily, and the game had to be called back to the even sixth inning, which cut off Brooklyn's two runs and three hits.

Baltimore vs. St. Louis.

The St. Louis Browns won for the ninth time July 27 in Baltimore, Md., both outbatting and outfielding the home-team. Whid pitching gave the Baltimores four runs, while three-basers by Davis and Tucker helped them to two more runs. The Browns bunched seven safe hits in the fourth and seventh innings and scored five earned runs. Welch and Caruthers made brilliant catches, and Robinson did the best batting.

Metropolitan vs. Clascinnati.

Manager Caylor achieved a triumph July 30 at St. George, Staten Island, for on that day his new team, the Mets, beat his old team, the Cincinnatis, in an exciting ten-inning contest. The Cincinnatis started off with the lead, scoring four runs off a like number of safe hits, assisted by errors by Mays and Gerhardt. During the remainder of the game the visitors were retired without scoring, being unable to bunch their hits. The Mets tied the acore in the sixth inning on safe hits by Orr and Jones, and a wild throw by McPhee. A safe hit by Radford, an error by McPhee and a base on balls brought in the two winning runs in the tenth inning. McPhee's second-base play was the fielding

A lucky streak of batting at the finish helped the home-team to a victory July 29, a three-bagger by Stovey and four singless then yielding four runs. The visitors jumped on to Seward at the start, bunching six safe hits for four runs in the first two innings. Three singless in the eighth let in three more runs. Good running catches were made by Stovey and Larkin. Lyons fielded finely at third-base. Kerins was injured in the ninth inning and Cross took his place.

The Boston Club's tribute was a diamond of ty and pansies, surmounted by a lyre of white likes with a broken string, with bunches of roses in the corners. Among the other pieces were two from Detroit, one being from Manager Watkins and the other from the Indianapolis Club. There were also tributes from the Indianapolis Club. the Philadelphia Club, Manager Gaffney of the Washington Club and Ed. Williamson of the Chicago team.

The INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE seems to have served its special purpose, which was—according to The Clippen's idea—to arouse an interest in the national game in Canada to an extent sufficient to enable the Canadians to build up a Canadian professional league of their own. This they can very well do in 1888, and the chances are that a New York State League, with an inexpensive circuit, will supersede the international in 1888. Toronto, Hamilton, London, Gdelph, Kingston, Coburg, with Oltawa and Montreal, would make a paying circuit.

THE NEW ENGLAND LEAGUE held a meeting at the American House, Lowell, July 28, at which President Knox asked that the Lawrences be allowed to play out the remainder of the season in Salem. The request was granted. The meeting was held chiefly for the purpose of taking action upon this matter. Pinally an executive session was held, during which Umpire Phinney was discharged and P. H. Rafferty of Lynn appointed his successor.

IN THE last game between the New York and Boston Clubs, while Captain Kelly of the Bostons was at third he left the base and stood outside the lines, and Welch saked that he be declared out. Umpire Sullivan gave Kelly out for being off the base-line. Ewing refused to accept the decision, and Kelly was allowed to remain at third. Kelly's standing outside the lines was no violation of the rules; he was simply running a risk of being put out.

The negotiations which for several days past have been pending for the transfer of the Altoona Club to Canton, Ohio, where it will become a part of the Ohio State League, were on July 27 completed, and the club will report there for duty and take part in the games against Zanesville, beginning Aug. 4.

Metropolitan vs. Brooklyn.

The Mets defeated the Brooklyn July 31 at Ridgewood, the two clubs then playing off the game postponed from May 7 and scheduled to be played at Staten Island. The Brooklyns put in Porter to pitch, and the Mets went for him from the start, they scoring five earned runs off eleven safe hits, Both teams were wrought up to a pitch of excitement, and both clubs kicked in a discreditable manner. Geo. A. Smith of the Brooklyn Athletic Club officiated as umpire, and did his duty impartially. Holbert's short-stopping was noteworthy.

The twelfth game was played July 30 in Philadelphia, Pa., the St. Louis team then scoring their ninth victory of the series. Of the seven safe hits secured off King, four were made in the fifth inning, when the visitors also bunched their errors, and the result was five unearned runs for the Athletics. The lead thus secured was held until the last half of the ninth inning, when a base on balis, a wild throw by Lyons, and a lucky hit by Lattam, gave the visitors the winning run with only one man out. O'Nell knocked the ball over the left-field fence for a home run in the sixth inning.

The Athletics gave the champ on a bad beating Aug. 1, outplaying them at all points. Seward-pitched very effectively, only five safe hits being made off him. A single by O'Neil and a two-bagger by Weich earned the only run scored by the St. Louis. The home-team batted Hudson with ease, bunching five safe hits in the seventh and eighth innings for four runs. Errors by Gleason, Latham and Robinson enabled the Athletics to make five runs in the fourth inning of but two safe hits. O'Neil was credited with a good running catch off a foul near the left-field fence. Umpire McQuade made several close decisions against the home team, and was vigorous y hooted.

The game aug. I in Brooklyn was witnessed by the smallest assemblage of spectators of the season. Those absent missed a very interesting contest, the Clevelands winning by superior fielding. the season for the champions.

The Championship Record.

The contest for the pennant may be set down as a settled question even at this period of the season, for St. Louis has too strong a lead to be overcome by any of its opponents. The fight for second place, however, this fair to be quite close and interesting Baltimore lost ground badly in July, while Louisville and Cincinnati made good running. Cleveland is still the tail-ender, but the team is playing good ball. The Mets, too, are improving. The record to Aug. 1, inclusive is as follows:

the Washingtons gave Indianapolis two runs by trying to prolong the game until it should be called.

Faultless fielding helped the Bostons to a victory over the champions July 30. Three safe hits were made by the visitors in the first inning, and errors by Pferfer, Daly and Ryan then yielded four runs and a winning lead. Radbourn let up in the last inning, when the Chicagos batted out four runs, three earned, and thus—saved themselves from being shut out. Kelly's catching was the chief feature of the contest.

The Detroit va. New York.

The Detroits won again July 30, the result then being due to errors at critical points and stupid base-running by the New Yorks. Keefe kept the home-team from scoring more than uve safe hits, but errors by Ward, D. Richardson and Ewing, together with two bases on balls, let in seven unearned runs. Errors by H. Richardson, Manning and White, and four safe hits, belped the visitors to five runs and the lead in the fourth inning. A three-bagger by Connor and a home-run by Tiernan gave two more runs in the eighth. Connor led off in the ninth inning with a hit on which he should have made a home-run, but he preferred remaining on third base, and was left there.

Detroit vs. Philadelphia.

Faultiess fielding enabled the Philadelphians to win Aug. 1, in Detroit, Mich., it being their fourth consecutive victory of the series. A single by Richardson, a three-bagger by White, and two-bases on balls yielded two runs to the home-team in the first inning. Casey then braced up and retired the Detroits without a run, and with but five scattering hits during the remainder of the contest. Wood did the best batting for the visitors, his three safe hits including a home-run. Manning, who played short-step, in the absence of Rowe, was charged with four costly errors, letting in six uncarned runs. Thompson made a nest catch, and by a throw to the plate assisted in a brilliant double-play.

Indianapolis vs. Boston.

The tenth game was played Aug. 1 in Indianapolis, Ind., timely batting then giving the Bostons their sixth victory of the series. Madden and Healy were hatted freely, but the home-tram were unable to bunch their hits. Myers was badly spiked in the foot in the fifth inning and Hackett took his place, and Denny, who was suffering from sore hands, was compelled to give way to Polhemus. In the eighth inning Cahill ran into Madden, knocking him senseless. He recovered, however and plucklip played until the fluish.

Chicago vs. Washington.

The Washingtons were shut out Ang. 1 in Chicago, Ill., making but three scattering safe hits of Clarkson, who was almost perfectly supported. The champions pounded O'Day hard and often, Williamson, Pfeffer, Ryan and Clarkson getting home-runs, and Ryan, Sullivan and Burns two-baggers.

The Championship Record.

It looks more and more like Chicago again winning the championship. Sixteen victories out of twenty-four games are the champions' record for July, and the promise is that August will see them beat those figures. When New York opened in De-July, and the promise is that August will see them beat those figures. When New York opened in Detroit with a victory last week everyone thought the important raily had come. But three straight defeats since have destroyed the new-born hope. Phinadelphia has railied again, and the Quaker City's hopes have revived. The record to Aug. 1, inclusive, is: Per C

The rules are very explicit in regard to legal cause for suspension of play in case of rain. The words are (Rule 45): "The umpire shall suspend play only for an accident to himself or a player, or in case rain falls so heavily that the spectators are compelied by the severity of the storm to seek shelter, in which case he shall note the time of suspension, and should such rain continue to fail thirty minutes thereafter he shall terminate the game. It will be seen that an ordinary fall of rain, such as that which fell at Ridgewood Park, Sunday, July 31, is not a legal cause for suspension of play. It must be so heavy a fall as to cause the crowd to seek shelter on account of its severity. Not a man left his seat in the free stands at Ridgewood Park on that afternoon, when Umpire Smith suspended play in the fourth inning on account of a light fail of rain, and the umpire was right, when the rule was explained to him, in at once resuming play, even though rain was falling.

To paraphrase an old saying, it may be observed that "in the multiplicity of pitchers there is much weakness." Detroit now has eight pitchers on the club pay-roll, viz: Baidwin, Getzein, Weidman, Conway, Twitchell, Burke, Gruber, and lastly Beaton. Of these pitchers, up to July 31 Twitchell had pitched in 10 victories and 1 defeat; Getzein in 14 victories and 6 defeats; Weidman in 13 victories and 7 defeats; Baidwin and Weidman would suffice amply for what work is to be done yet. Experimenting with new pitchers is costly in the midst of a season, unless the old ones break down badiy, which is not the case with Detroit.

CLU managers and captains who refuse to allow the regular substitute umpire to act, as Comiskey did in Brooklyn and Caylor at Ridgewood, in July, are requested to read the appended law of the American Association Constitution on the subject: Section 4s of the constitution reads—"Whenever the regular umpire fails to reach the point designated in time to officiate, then the home-club shall furnish the names of not less than three reputable persons, who shall in no manner be connected with or have any interest in either club, from whom the captains of both club shall select an umpire." In no other way can substitutes for the official umpire be appointed.

In Kansas City, on July 31, a veteran from the Soldiers' Home, Leavenworth, who visited the city to witness the game at Armourdale between the soldiers' nine from Fort Leavenworth and an amateur team of that suburb, was so much disappointed at the defeat of the soldiers that he rushed to the centre of the Armourdale bridge over the Raw River and jumped off, falling thirty feet into the water, intending to end his existence. He was rescued by a passing skiff and his first words were said to be expressions of deep sorrow at the defeat of the soldier-team.

Gossip Gleaned by The Clipper's Boston

Gossip Gleaned by The Clipper's Boston Haseball Reporter.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 1.—The latest phase in the New England League has been the transfer of the Lawrence Club to Salem. That the Lawrences could only go on under great financial loss had been foreshadowed in these columns. The grounds been foreshadowed in these columns. The grounds could only be reached after a long and tedious forty-minutes' ride in the horse-cars, and one could almost go as quickly to Haverhill and see a game there. Salem is a good baseball city, but has not there. Salem is a good basebal city, but has not had good management nor a good nine in its experience this year. The team is transferred infact, and is as strong a one as there is in New England. The new manager is ex-New England umpire W. B. Phinney. The career of the club thus far has been excellent. The state of things in this League is nothing if not unique. Two clubs, the Boston Blues and the Lawrences, have now disbanded and have transferred their allegiance to other cities, Haverhill and Salem respectively. The Haverhills lost just eight straight games, really making a worse record with their strengthened nine than the old club. They have failen off in batting. Burns of the New Havens has joined the Lowells. Manager Murphy announces the engagement by the Lynns of pitcher Fitzgeraid, late of the New Havens, also of Sam Crane. This will decidedly strengthen his club. The Salems made a good acquisition in catcher Farreil, who came from Mariboro. He is an excellent catcher and a good batsman. The struggle for supremacy goes by pairs, as can be seen by the standing: Portland, 48—21; Lowell, 44—22; Haverhill, 38—25; Manchester, 39—29; Lynn, 33—37; Salem, 31—35. Lowell is playing a very strong game, and has been steadily slowly and surely drawing even with the Portlands. Bishop, the Pittsburg acquisition, has turned out very satisfactorily for them Our brilliant amateur, George Richardson, played one of his old-time games with the Beacons against the Hinghams on Saturday. He made a double and a triple, put out six, assisted four, with no passed ball, and but one error. Nichols of Harvard pitched, and Noyes, the Pale man, played short-stop. I notice that last Saturday "Cyclone" Miler played second-base in the Pawtuckets, while Ed. Conley, pitcher, played first-base. The Pawtuckets were beaten 5-4 by the Plainvilles The Newton team had four Sullivans on its nine Saturday. T. in rightfield, D. J., 3b.; D., 2b., and J. V., p. D. Sullivan on second had nine put out as and the asale that men could not give had good management nor a good nine in its experience this year The team is transferred intact, Winslow of the Harvard nine was shrewd enough to see that if he had a pretty poor nine it was much easier to make hitters of them than fielders. So he had two large wide nets made and affixed to poles. He had his men out on the field every day, sometimes twice. He requested, too, the presence of every man in college who could pitch. Then pitchers gave the batsmen the benefit of their deliveries, and as a result the boys learned to bat. They got so that they could hit any pitcher. They were not a base-running or a particularly brilliant fielding team but they had confidence, and they could hit any pitcher. They won the championship hands down, and didn't lose a game. No catcher was needed for this sort of practice. The net stopped the balls, and if the batsman did not hit them, he could easily throw the ball back. This, too, gives the best facility in the world for the practice of sacrifice hitting. No wonder professionals bat so weakly. They never practice, and never learn how. Captains rarely correct bad form in position and in striking at a ball, and there is room for much missionary work in this direction....The opinion prevails here that the Boston nine would be strengthened if Kelly were to go behind the bat more offen and give Sutton more of a chance to play on the nine. Sutton is too good a batsman to be laid off, and he is all the more valuable as the nine has falten off greatly in its batting. Nash has been doing very poor work in the field and at the bat, and it is very hard to account for his poor work. It has enabled John Morrill to play as brilliantly as he has, with a record of .985 and but one error in the last sixteen games. With such players as Denny, Glasscock and Bassett to throw to him, his average would be doubtless .990. He has some terribly wild throws to stop and pick-ups to make where he isThe Herald and Globe are both having a.canvass of their readers, the former to ascertain their opinions as to who are the best three base-runners and general players. Naturally enough, it will b is action, by long odds Trank Bancton, happy over his nominal, as well as actual, release from managerial responsibilities, is at North Conway, N. H., and writes that the baseball fever is intense in that locality, the Bos ons, of course, being warm favorites.... Moolic, late of the Boston Blues, is playing in Farmington, N. H..... Brewster of Duluth, Minn., is no other person than Bingham, the Harvard pitcher. The attempt to conceal his identity will cost Bingham the great popularity he enjoyed by reason of his superb work this Summer... Adrian C. Anson may well be proud of his 31 victories and 13 defeats in June and July. The Chicagos lost fewer games in those two months than they did in June alone.... Before Clarkson was married, he went back on the Hub, his home, and preferred the Lake City. They wanted him here badily, but he wouldn't come. Now that he is married he is more than anxious to play in this city, and I do not doubt that he would be willing to pay $1,000 for his own release in addition to what Boston would pay. A deal may be made at the close of the season. All of Clarkson's friends and relatives are here, and, you know, there's no place like home.Ganzel's record as catcher is .872, including passed balls as errors. Few in the country can approach this.

PRESIDENT STERN of the Cincinnati Club says that crowds at the American Association ball grounds are officially over-estimated. He says that on Decoration-day, in Baltimore, while the official count given out was 15,000 people, the Cincinnati Club was paid its share of receipts on the basis of a few over 7,000 admissions. Here is a discrepancy of over a hundred per cent.

Is the matter of the double contracts signed by the players of the Alientown Club with Detroit and Cincinnati, it would appear that the Detroit Club has the only legal claim on the services of the two players, inasmuch as their release was purchased from the Alientown Club before it had legally disbanded.

PRESIDENT SPALDING has been poisoned; but it was by his accidental handling of poison ivy while on "old Long Island's seagirt shore." He says his daily occupation while at Fire Island recently has been "to take four baths a day and a tall scratching, and take it out in cuss words."

MANAGER CAYLOR says that the Metropolitah Club will be in the American Association next season; but he makes the statement with the proviso that the percentage plan of dividing receipts is adopted. As four clubs are decidly opposed to it, it looks as if the Mets would be out.

A TEA-SHIP'S FAST RUN.

The annual race from Yokohama, Japan, to New York, between the big steamships engaged in the tea-carrying trade, ended July 30, when the new vessel of the Glen line, the Glenshiel, Capt. R. A. Donaldson, arrived at this port, having beaten the Monmouthshire, which started considerably in advance of her. The Glenshiel is a new vessel of 3.45 gross and 2,240 tons net, and took the piace of the Glenavon. She is supplied with triple expansion engines, electric lights and other modern improvements. She sailed from Yokohama at 4 P. M. June 4, having taken on board 1,950 chests of tea. On June 5 she reached Hiogo, on the 11th Nagasaki, and on the 17th Amoy. At Amoy 2,621 chests of Oolong tea were taken on, and 361 chests brought from Shanghai by a coaster. Perein was reached July 7, Suez 12, Port Said 13, and Gibraltar 19. The trip from Gibraltar to New York occupied but 10 days and 16 hours. The Monmouthshire left Yokohama at 10 a. M. May 31, and was passed by her rival at 3P. M. June 25. The Monmouthshire steamed into the harbor at Amoy June 12, and the Glenshiel two days later. The Monmouthshire left Amoy at 6 a. M. June 15 for Hong-Kong. The other vessel sailed at 6 P. M. June 17 for Singapore. The Monmouthshire arrived at Singapore at 11 P. M. June 21 from Hong-Kong, and left at Perein at 1 P. M. June 21 from Hong-Kong, and left at Perein at 1 P. M. Her figurehead was put in place on Saturday, and adds greatly to her appearance. Her sides have been painted a pure white.

Of the half-dozen races run during the afternoon the Belmont stable was successful, in two, the oldis against the winner of each being 6 to 1, so that if the stable money was on the freturns must have been very satisfactory. THE RING.

BRADBURN KNOCKS OUT GLOVER. The fight to a finish with skin gloves between Frank Glover and Wm. Bradburn took place July 27 near Gibson, Ind. There were about seventy perrean Gibson, Ind. There were about seventy persons present, fifty of them having paid $20 each for the privilege of witnessing the contest. Bradburn was in much better condition than he has ever before stripped in. He weighed 165b. Glover weighed 162 and his powerful frame showed the results of careful training. The fight was a desperate one. From the first Bradburn and the best of it and he kept continually taunting Glover with remarks of "You can't hit me with a broad-axe." "I told my friends so before I came in." "You've got no sick boy now." Bradburn avoided nearly all of Glover's leads by clever ducking, and repeatedly planted his left with telling effect on Glover's stomach. In the second round, he cross-countered Glover on the jaw and scored a clean knock-kown. In the fourth round, glover railled, and, by feinting with his left, induced Bradburn to duck, and then got home three terrible upper-cuts with his right. In the seventh round he made his last raily, and with a straight left-hander on the mouth and an upper-cut dazed Bradburn. In the ninth round, after they had been fighting thirty-five minutes, Bradburn knocked him out.

KILRAIN VS. NOLAN.—Noian of Cincinnati went to Cleveland in search of a match with either Jake Kirrain or Charley Mitcheil, and had no difficulty in getting accommodated by the former. They have made a match to fight twelve rounds, Queensoerry rules, with two-onuse gloves, for the gate-receipts, at Cheater Park, Cincinnati, on Aug. 29. Kifrain has gone to Baltimore for a few days, and will go to Chaultauqua next week and prepare for the contest.

About Fifty of the right sort witnessed a fight with small gloves between George H. Joyce of Buffalo, N. Y., and Tommy Ryan of Erie, Pa., near Batavia, N. Y., duly 29. In the ninth round Joyce got in a stunner behind the ear and his opponent failed to come up for any more.

ARTHUR BOBERTT and Jim Kendrick fought a dozen rounds with gloves at the Lambeth School of Arms, London, Eng., July 21, for $500, the former coming off victor. Kendrick seems to have gone back.

Tom CLARK and Charley McCarthy, Wilmington, Del., middle-weights, fought with thin gloves for $500, July 30, at havre de Grace, Md., before about twenty-five spectators. McCarthy was declared the winner after fighting sixteen rounds.

MITCHELL DEFEATS GALLAGHER.

The six-round glove contest, under Queenslerry rules, between Charley Mitchell of England, and "Reddy" Gallagher of Cleveland, O., fook place at a gymnasium in that city on Thursday evening. July 28. It had been thought that this contest would have created so much interest in that section, where the sporting fraternity are so sweet on the local man, that there would have been difficulty in accommodating all who desired to witness the encounter, but in this the managers were mistaken, as less than two hundred paid the five-dolar tarif demanded for a sight of the mill. Mitchell was the favorite in what little betting was done. He was seconded by Jake Kilrain. Gallagher was waited upon by Harry Pank. The men wore gloves weighing four ounces each, and the contest was on the level, each man doing his best, but the superiority of Mitchell was made cleary apparent soon after commencing. He assumed the aggressive at once, and maintained it throughout the engagement, outgeneraling his opporent stall points, outhitting him, and administering considerable punishment, considering the softness of the gloves used. During the first two or three rounds the local boxer made a very good stand against his more scleened and experienced antagonist, but afterwards he was content to remain on the defensive most of the time, getting in a blow now and then. The greater part of the fighting was done in one of the corners, where Mitchell drove Gallagher in every round except the last, when Reddy kept on the run nearly all the time, refusing to be penned upany more. At the close of the situation of Mitchell—a decision that all present were well satisfied with. Those who remember the glove-fights between Gallagher and Fete McCoy, and between the former and Jack bempsey, now entertain a higher opinion of Charley's ability than they had before.

A PROLONGED BATTLE.

Al. Jansen and Robert Burns, both of Olney-ville, belonging to the light-weight class, fought with skin-tight gloves, for $200 a side and the State championship, at Warwick, near Providence, Aug. 1. Until they became weak from their exertions Championship, at Warwick, hear Providence, Aug.

1. Until they became weak from their exertions under a broiling sun and the punishment received, they were almost constantly punmelling each other viciously at close quarters. Jansen had the best of it in the earlier part of the battle, delivering many heavy straight-arm blows with his left upon the upper part of Burns' body and his face, the latter causing the blood to flow freely from the nose, which work gave him a decided advantage. When Burns recovered from his punishment he began to fight well with his right, which he had-apparently been holding in reserve. He dealt Jansen a series of staggering raps on the stomach and over the heart, winding him badly, and had his strength been equal to his skill he could have readily won the fight by following up his steady work, as Jansen was groggy and bewildered. Both men fought aimlessly for several rounds, and then they went at each other, giving and taking without advantage to either. Burns retired from the conflict with first blood and three knockdowns to his credit, and was indisputably in the best condition at the close of the contest. The referee declared it a draw.

incisputably in the best condition at the close of the contest. The referee declared it a draw.

A SPARKING EXHIBITION was given at Haltnorth's Garden, Cleveland, O., on the evening of July 20. The principal event was to have been a set-to between Jake Kilrain and Charley Mitchell's hands having been injured in his contest with Galiagher the previous evening. This announcement occasioned so much disappointment, however, that Mitchell consented to put the mittens on for one round, just, as Billy Madden said, to "let you see how he shapes." He and Kilrain then gave a two-minute set-to, Mitchell only using one hand, as he could not, it was stated, get on the other glove on account of the swollen condition of his right hand. Kilrain and Madden also gave a four-round set-to. About a thousand persons, including a number of women, were present.

In the early part of the battle Jensen had the best of the milling, and looked like a winner, but Shelton afterwards turned the tables, and, forcing the fighting vigorously, he compelled his opponent to strike his colors at the end of the differenth round. They will probably be matched again, to light for $100 a side.

Short Fight,—The glove contest between Denny Kelleher of Quincy, Mass., and Jack McGee of Boston took place in a room 17 the latter city on the evening of July 26. A stubborn contest had been expected, but the spectators were disappointed in this, as at the very first exchange of blows Kelleher crossed his opponent on the point of the jaw with such force that the recipient was unable to come to the scratch at the call of time, and Kelleher was declared the winner at the end of two minutes and twenty seconds.

declared the winner at the end of two minutes and twenty seconds.

SMITH SETTLES LAYTON.—Jack Smith of this city and Billy Layton of Bradford, Pa., met near Jamestown, N. Y. July 28, to fight with hard gloves to a finish for a purse. The ring was pitched in a vaccant lot near Griffith's Point, on Chautauqua Lake. There was nothing eventual in the first round, but in the second Smith was knocked down and Layton got first blood. In the third round Layton got first blood. In the third round Layton punished his man severely and scored a knock-down. In the sixth round both men were badly punished, and Smith knocked out his man.

BILLY HAWKINS arrived in Winnipeg Man., July 25. He has about recovered from the effects of his fight with Gilmore, and is a little more robust than when he went East. He went to the "peg" for the purpose of training for the match he will endeavor to make with the winner of the McAulinet-tarney fight, for which he has, we learn, 8t. Paul backing to the amount of $1,900. Billy's friends leased the Princess' Opera house for July 24, when a testimonial exhibition was to be given him. He is stopping at the Nickle-plate Hote, with Ed. McKeown.

THE LIGHT-WEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP.—The second deposit in the math between James Carney of England and Jack McAuliffe of this State for the international light-weight championship, $4,000 a side and the best now held by the former, was posted in Boston July 30, making $1,000 a side in the stakeholder's hands. Carney had a big reception upon his return home.

BILL BRADBURN and Dominick McCaffrey are Bill. Bradburn and Dominick McCaffrey are negotiating for a giove match, to be decided in Pittaburg, where both fighters belong. Bradburn, who is elated over his victory in the fight with Glover, dealres the contest to be to a finish, while McCaffrey wants it limited to haif a dozen rounds knowing that he will then have a better chance.

JIMMY CARNEY was to have had a complimentary benefit in Birmingham, Eng., July 2, at which he was to put on the gloves with Patsy Sheppard of Boston, his principal backer while Carney was in the States, Among the others who were announced to appear were Jim Smith, Jim Mace, Alf. Greenfield, Toff Wall and Anthony Diamond.

BOUCICAULT'S TERRIBLE EXPERIENCY.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER.

Last Tuesday evening was to have been a redletter night in the history of the Munchausen Club of Truth Tellers, but it nearly turned out a blackletter night. It was the regular Friday evening meet at the Hofman House Art Gallery, and the attendance was large, for a highly distinguished member of the histrionic profession was to make his bow as an M. T. T., having passed his examination and satisfied the committee that he was worthy to wear at his lappel the brass philactery of the club, which bears the legend: "I Am Something of a Truth Teller Myself," and which had been officially conferred upon him.

This H. D. M. of the H. P. was no other than the famous histrion known as Dion Boucicault, author of "The Arabian Nights," "Gibbons' Rise and Fall of the Roman Empire," "Robinson Crusoe," etc., including a thousand and one dramatic successes, such as "Othello," "Lady of Lyons," "The Gladiator," etc. After several Munchausens had waled waist deep among the flowers of truth and freshly concocted art mixtures had been wafted round the circle of Truth Tellers, the highly distinguished histrion pulled himself together and made ready to flesh his maiden sword, so to speak, as a full-fledged member of the M. C. of T. T., the various members maintaining their usual triple-X apathy.

B., "and several years before I became engulfed in dramatics, that I, then a stout lad of some fifteen Summers, found myself in the Southern seas on a whaler, hailing from New Bedford.
"We had had remarkable luck, were full to overflowing with oil—it seemed as though the whales had sought out our old brig and wished to be killed by us, having become tired of a monotonous life, or of being harrassed by scrub whalemen—and were bound for some South American port to unload.

"I was the lookout aloft, generally, and one day "I was the lookout aloft, generally, and one day espied a suspicious-looking craft on our weather quarter, which I reported at once. The mate went aloft, and when he went below he bade me follow him, as he said there would soon be work enough for all hands, and further lookout was unnecessary. The sail was a long, low, black schooner, which the mate declared to be a putter, offering to wage a thousand dollars on it without takers. You will notice that the prosite was not a pleasing one, brothers.

"We numbered, all hamis, including the captain, cook and myself, twenty-two hands—the pirate probably had four score—and carried two six-pounders, with muskets and cutlasses enough to go round—you know pirates were plenty in those days—and a lot of spiked shoes provided for just such emergencies, why, you will understand later.

"The old cannons were quickly loaded, the muskets, cutlasses and Colt's revolvers (how the inventor would have laughed in the sleeve of his shroud, had he have heard this] brought from below and laid on the quarter-deck, and the cook was ordered to boil some oil. In the meantime, everything possible had been done to bring out every inch of speed the old brig possessed, mainbrace spliced, yards braced, etc., and, as she was as oily as an old cow-whale, she responded to the best of her ability. A fair sailer for one of her build and age in a good breeze, yet she had no license to undertake to lead a Baltimore clipper a very long, stern chase, but had business to get away from her if possible.

"In this business she failed, however, the pirate sailing two feet to her one in the eight-knot breeze then blowing. Brothers, I assure you that things began to take on the blue-black look that immediately precedes the erubescent hue that opens up when a pirate has the weathergage of, and outfoots, you. Yes, brothers, it was a bleak moment, and the main-brace was heavily spliced by order of the captain, and well it was, for whatever may be said to the contrary, that operation reinforces the bravest hearts.

"Suffice to say, brothers, that the chase was not a long one. In two hours from the time of sighting the pirate she was ready to lay aboard of us, the old brig lying helpless, her foremast having been shot away by the pirate's Long Tom. Oil casks were now knocked in the head, and the decks were ankle deep in oil. Two barrels of bo the toney corsair, when I had been arranged in a striking tableau before him. 'Well,' he went on to say as I nodded, 'you are a brick'—this was the first time I ever heard that expression. 'Yes, you're a brick, my lad, and will make a first-class pirate! I'll make you one, my lad—an Al pirate! Brothers, that man of blood and carnage was as good as his word, I am pained to say, and, in the fulness of time, under the coercion act of this bloody chief, I became a pirate—modesty forbids me to say whether a first or second class one, but I became—a pirate!"

bloody chief, I became a pirate—modesty forbids me to say whether a first or second class one, but I became—a pirate!"

Instantly a change came over the spirit of the Munchausen dream, and such a change! Apathy gave way to horror on the faces of all, and the president, Shed, Shook, shook visibly and shed his castor, as he exclaimed: "Impossible! impossible!" He and all knew it was impossible!" He and all knew it was impossible; and what was to be a red-letter night was a black-letter night! He, D. B., a pirate? Never! of the club would have been torn from the narrator's lappel, for the telling of an untruth! But he saw his danger and, rallying quickly, skillfully recomposed himself, as it were.

"But, my dear brothers in truth,' he went on to say, "I took a terrible revenge on that pirate chief and his ungodly horde! On the third day after my capture, having gained the confidence of the pirates, I slipped into the cook's galley, took therefrom a lighted kerosene lamp (the face of the Munchausen Club resumed its normal look, the trotting out of a kerosene lamp one hundred years ago spreading apathy thickly over the aforesaid face], and with it plunged at one fell swoop into the powder magazine—brothers, cold beads of sweat start out all over me as I think of that terrible moment!"

"Good God! I should think they would," exclaimed a highly excited listener outside the Munchausen fold, which looked, unanimously, its unutterable disgust. "But how did it come out, for heaven's sake?" the speaker queried.

"Come out, my friend," said the narrator, "with the lightning's flash and the thunder's roar."

"Yes, I know," said the excited one, with bated breatt; "but the vessel and crew—what became of them?"

"What became of them? Why, you inspissated pearl of imbecility, the gessel blew up, and we all

POINTS OF A BULL-TERRIER.

A club known as the Bull-terrier Club was re-cently organized in England, with the following President, J. W. Berrie; vice-presidents Messrs. Prait and Hartley; secretary, Mr. Lee; treasurer, Mr. Tatham. The following points of a perfect bull-terrier were adopted:

GENERAL APPEARANCE.—The general appearance of the bull terriet is that of a symmetrical animal an embodiment of agility, grace, elegance and dean embodiment of agility, grace, elegance and determination.

Hran,—The head should be long, flat and wide between the ears, tapering to the nose, without cheek muscles. There should be a slight indentation down the face, without "a stop" between the eyes. The jaws should be long and very powerful, with a large black nose and open nostrils. Eyes small and very black. The lips should meet as tightly as possible, without a fold. The teeth should be regular in shape, and should meet exactly; any deviation, such as a "pig-jaw" or "being under-hung," is a great fault.

EARS.—The ears are always cropped for the show bench, and should be done scientifically and according to fashion.

NECK.—The neck should be long and slightly arched, nicely set into the shoulder, tapering to the head without any loose skin, as found in the building.

head without any loose skin, as found in the bulldog.

Shoulders.—The shoulders should be strong, muscular, and slanting; the cheat wide and deep, with ribs well rounded.

Back.—The back short and muscular, but not out of proportion to the general contour of the animal.

Leas.—The forelegs should be perfectly straight, with well developed muscles; not "out at shoulder," but act on the racing lines, and very strong at the pastern joints. The hind-legs are long, and, in proportion to the forelegs, muscular, with good, strong, straight hocks, well let down near the ground.

FEST.—The feet are not resembling those of the cat or greyhound, but more after the style of the hare, compact, with well-arched toes.

COAT.—Short, close and stiff to the touch, with a fine gloss.

pirate sailing two feet to her one in the eight-knot breeze then blowing. Brothers, I assure you that things began to take on the blue-black look that immediately precedes the erubescent hue that opens up when a pirate has the weather agge of, and outfoots, you. Yes, brothers, it was a bleak moment, and the main-brace was heavily spliced by order of the capitain, and well it was, for whatever may be said to the contrary, that operation reinforces the bravest hearts.

"Suffice to say, brothers, that the chase was not a long one. In two hours from the time of sighting the pirate she was ready to lay aboard of us, the old brig lying helpless, her foremast having been shot away by the pirate's Long Tom. Oil casks were now knocked in the head, and the decks were ankle deep in oil. Two barrels of boiling oil were ready to be put where they would do the most good, and the men, if not eager, were armed and ready for the fray.

"The plrate was soon alongside, making fast with grappling-irons, and, as we had no boarding out the pirate was soon alongside, making fast with grappling-irons, and, as we had no boarding that the property of the state of the state of the she, through his boat toward the swortlish, which was quite large and not badly wounded. "The pirate was soon alongside, making fast with grappling-irons, and, as we had no boarding nettings, it was only a question of a few minutes when the sanguinary sea-raiders we did be aboard. There had been some shooting don on both sides, but, as the pirate showed very it wenn, no damage was done. The grappling-irons made fast, however, the pirates swarmed like bees on the deck of their craft. Business, brothers, bloody, bloody business was opened for the day! It thinks my blood to think of that hour, and I feel just as felt then, when I saw the black flag, with skull and crossbones, flying at the pirate's main peak!

"It would take too long to describe that work of carnage in detail, and I can only say in brief, that we fought like brave men, long and well, with cut-lass sharp and wildest yell; with oil red hot and pistol shot, but all laid low save Boucicault! It was laughable to see the pirates, all bare-footed, slip and sprawl on the oiled decks—our spiked shoek kept us up—but no one laughed more than once for want of time. I am telling you it was abusy hour, brothers, and a bloody one! It was shoot and slash, cut and smash, roar and yell, groan and fall until blood swam two inches deep on the oil all over the dreks, and honest salor men and ruthless pir — in thickly about in the bloody mass, all — now in death.

"I won't say now many pirates I slaughtered myself, but I threw the bodies of eleven overboard to the sharks, and I know I did not have time to throw over any of those slain by my measmates, the pirate chief, from the deck of his craft—the was too toney to go into a fight himself with the show?"

Bro. Redwise.—Many thanks for your kind and interesting letter. It is the most gentlemanly and natisfactory explanation of the "8" abomination that ever came under our notice.

ALONGO, Newport. Mon., Eng.—Our surprise was only equaled by our delight on receiving the splendid remembrance of the approaching close of the sixteenth century of THE CLIFFER's problems. It will be duly honored; accept our hearty thanks—also for other remembrances, which are reciprocated.

Mocept our hearty thanks—also for other remembrances, which are reciprocated.

OUR SIXTENETH CENTURY of chess numbers will be completed in two weeks, and to our intense satisfaction our friend and contributor of many years, Alonzo Townsend of Newport, Monmouthshire, Eng., has sent us an original lef-move suimate in commemoration of reaching that milestone in our long career. We note this, in part, to pique the attention of Rabson, Loyd, Phelps, Shinkman and others, our foremost masters, to this healtly, revival and perpetuation of a good old custom. Nor is that all. The chess world is more indebted to Mrs. Townsend that it has hitherto known. During the haleyon days of courtable, a period proverbially given over to the most inane and inconsequential of twaddle, Miss —, with a higher appreciation of the value of time, inducted her lower into the delightful mysteries of chess; nor is it to be seen in the delightful mysteries of chess; nor is it to be seen that a man can serve two [mistressee] without evoking a shade of discontent, or a taint of jealousy. Whereunto if any doubt, "Emma Jane," "Phania" or Caissa can be put upon the stand.

*The time occupied in playing this game is worthy of note. Mr. B., up to his fortieth move, played plumply to his time limit—twenty moves an hour, the rest of the game somewhat more rapidly; Dr. Z., though he played thirty moves the first hour, consumed his second hour on thirteen moves! a degree of deliberation quite unprecedented with this magnificent master, we think. The end of the third hour found him only seven moves in advance of the minimum required by the rules. So, in this game at least, his friends have no possible charge of remisances to make—not even for the belise of move fifty-five.

GOOD CHESS sometimes seems to go in waves. After The International last noticed, came, in succession Brooklyn Chess Chronicle, Schacheriumg and Nuora Rivista, to all of which specially high praise is due; but The Chess Monthly bears the palm this time. Of its thirty-two pages, eighteen and half are filled with the choicest games of current chess, as always ably and instructively annotated—a feast for a chess epicure.

THE NEW YORK CLIPPER

THE PRANK QUEEN PUBLISHING CO. (Limited),

SATURDAY, AUGUST 6, 1887.

After placing to his credit the unequaled record in this country of seventeen stake races, without a solitary defeat, Hanover, the great three-year-old of the Dwyer stable, has met the fate which sooner or later overtakes nearly all crack thoroughbreds before their retirement from the scenes of their triumphs. He met with his Waterloo at Monmouth Park on Saturday last, when Laggard, to whom he was giving seventeen pounds in weight, easily showed the speedy son of Hindoo the way over the line. Several causes may be mentioned as contributing to the temporary downfall of a seem-ingly invincible champion. The muddy, slip-pery track was unfavorable to the chances a long-striding animal like him, while, after the work he had recently done, in public and private, he was asked to concede too much to so good a horse as the Uncas colt. Still, had he been up to the form be had shown on some former occaons, the causes referred to would not, we are satisfied, have operated to prevent him adding the Raritan Stakes to his long list of victories. The true reason for his defeat is doubtless to be found in the fact that the colt had grown stale from overtraining and being kept too long on the keen edge of condition. To the experienced eye he showed signs of this by the way in which he performed in the race of the previous Tues-day, his action lacking its customary dash and fire—faults yet more clearly apparent on Saturday. Of course this must have been known to owner, trainer and jockey of the horse, but they doubtless thought so highly of the colt's powers that they fully believed him capable of winning, even under such adverse circumstances. The result proved that they were wrong, and they have n to regret their mistake at least as much as the thousands of other admirers of Hanover who witnessed his overthrow with feelings of genuine sorrow. We presume that the Dwyers will now perceive the necessity of giving the horse the rest which he has undoubtedly well earned, and which his owners will consult their own interests by letting him have.

The Sculling Championship.

Edward Hanlan is not to be allowed to enjoy in peace the title of champion sculler of America, which he won by leading Jake Gaudaur across the line in that very peculiar race at Pullman, Ill. He has been promptly challenged by his former con-queror, John Teemer, whose backer, James Keenan of the Hub, offers to match the Pennsylvanian against him for a thousand dollars a side, to row three miles on any fair course, some body of water in the Old Bay State preferred. To this the cham-pion replies that he will row Teemer for the and from one thousand to five thousand dollars a side, provided the latter will consent to have the race on Toronto Bay, where Hanlan has determined that all his future match races shall be rowed while he holds that title. No fault can be found with Hanlan for this resolve, for, as he truthfully says, he has not rowed a match on home waters since 1878, and he lost both his former championships in contests waged a long way from Toronto. Keenan is willing to have his man meet Hanlan on the course mentioned, but stipulates that he shall be allowed the sum of $300 to cover expenses. So the matter stood when THE CLIPPER went to press, and it remains to be seen whether the challenged party is willing to allow Tecmer the amount asked, when he himself receives but $500 for expenses in going to Notwithstanding that the absence from the list of competitors of a number of distinguished exponents of the art of rowing militated against the entire success of the National Amateur regatta, it was a well-managed and memorable event. Not for years has Chautauqua Lake, the scene of the Hanlan-Courtney flasco of 1879, presented such a gala appearance as it did on Tuesday and Wednes-day of last week, while the public patronage ex-tended equaled expectations, and the races were so keenly contested as to afford the fullest satisfac tion to the spectators. The only representatives from any club of this vicinity were Goepfert and Regan of the Metropolitans, who gained a creditclassing their opponents.

A NOTEWORTHY YACHTING CRUISE ended of Saturday last, when the schooner Brunhilde, of the New York and American Yacht Clubs, owned and commanded by John J. Phelps, cast anchor in New York harbor, two years and one month out from New London, Ct., during which the circuit of the globe was made. Her owner is a son of Congressman Phelps, and shortly before starting graduated from Yale College. He commanded and navigated the boat during the trip, and cer tainly deserves credit for pluck and skill.

LOVERS OF THE CUP that cheers without inebri ating will be interested in the account elsewhere in this issue of the annual race between the steamships bringing the first tea of the new crop from Japan to this port. The competing vessels were e new steamer Glenshiel and the Monmouthshire, and, in addition to winning a handsome victory, to the former belongs the credit of surassing the time of all previous known passages between Yokohama and this port, as also from Gibraltar to New York. Captain Donaldson is pardonably proud.

"WE have received some first-class bookings," write Hale & Emery, managers of Hale's Opera-house, Towanda, Pa., "through our advertisement in THE CLIPPER, which has more than paid us."

.... The American Live Stock Association was incorporated last week by Joseph H. McPonald, C. W. Tankersley, C. F. Burnham, C. B. Browne and Henry W. Race.

Aug. 3—Twenty-mile road race, Pittsburg, Pa.

THE HEAT kept all but Doane, Benson and Marco out of the scorcher race, under the auspices of the Dorchester (Mass.) Bicycle Club, held over the twenty-five miles course from Dorchester Lower Mills to Needham and return, on July 30. The latter fell out after riding about five miles. Doane winning in 1h. 40m., closely followed by Benson. The object was to select a team of three to represent the club at the Pall meeting of the Eastern Roadracing Association.

the club at the Fall meeting of the Eastern monoracing Association.

Two professional championship races took place at the Aston Lower Grounds, near Birmingham, Eng., July 15, and were witnessed by three thousand spectators. A half-mile event was won by Ralph Temple in Im. 21½,s.; R. H. English second, by eighty-four yards. The twenty-dwe-miles race was taken by English, in 1h. 23m. 5½s., W. M. Woodside being the only other starter who went the full distance. He was beaten five yards.

of races for the championship of Chicago and the West, between R. H. Ellert and N. H. Van Sicklen, took place at Cheltenham Beach on July 23. The distance was five miles, and the race was closely contested all the way. Ellert proving the winner by

D. Cleiland won the race for the fifty miles road tricycle championship of Scotland on July 19. The race took place over the Morningside road, starting at the third mile-stone out from Edinburgh and riding twenty-five miles to Broughton and back. The winner's time was 3h. 37m. 18s. A. Hutton was second, in 3h. 39m. 33s., and J. J. M. Ingist third, in 3h. 42m. 13s.

ROBERT RUCK and A. R. Scott of the Star Wheel Club were to have started on Monday night, Aug. 1, with the intention of beating the Ohio twenty-four hours road record, 160 miles, made last year by Paimer of the Cleveland Bicycle Club. The route chosen was between that city and Paineaville, and each man expected to make over two hundred miles, provided the weather was favorable.

F. J. OSMOND made an attempt to beat G. Lacy Hillier's five-mile amateur record of 14m. 18s. at the Crystal Painece track, Engiand, July 21, and rode the distance in 14m. 185. s., losing by less than a second. The wind was not in his favor, so that there is no doubt that, given a good day and a good track, Osmond can accomplish the feat with comparative ease.

A. P. ENGLERKART attempted to beat Richard Hovell's time for five miles on a bicycle at Cov.

A. P. ENGLEHEART attempted to beat Richard Howell's time for five miles on a bleycle at Coventry, Eng. July 19, and he was successful, covering the distance on a "Safety" machine in 13m. 36%s. Adams, Fenion and Buckingham acted apacemakers, and G. Illston took the time for each mile.

THE Allegheny County Wheelmen's Association was formed in Pittsburg, Pa., last week. 'The new organization will build a quarter-mile track inside the haif-mile trotting track at the Gentlemen'. Driving Park, and it will be ready for the Fall race meeting which is to be held.

FRED LEES won the fourth contest this season for the twenty miles professional championship of England, decided at the Belgrave Grounds, Leicester, July 16. He won by half a yard, in 1h. 5m. 37s.; A. H. Robb second and J. Lumsden third, a fooi away.

FRED LEES, we are informed by cable, won the twenty-five miles race for the "international" by cycle championship, held at Leicester. Eng., July 30. None of the Americans now in that country participated, but several from the Continent were entered for the event.

The Newton, Mass., Bloycle Club held a twenty five miles road race on July 30. The course wa from Newton through Newtonville and West. New ton to Natick and return, and six started. E. I. Martin won, in 1b. 24m. 30s.; W. H. Barker second lb. 34m.; W. K. Corey third, 1b. 24m.

RALPH TEMPLE of Chicago won the mile profes stonal bicycle handicap race at Bridlington, Eng. Aug. 1, W. J. Morgan being second, and W. M Woodside third. The latter won a five-mile race. Time, 14m. 503,8.

Time, 14m. 30 kg.s. AT THE competitive meeting at Norwich, Eng. recently, L. P. Wood rode a mile on grass in the unequaled time of 2m, 46 kg.s., while G. P. Landridge rode a tricycle a mile in 3m. 19 kg.s., also a best-on-
